CLIENT MAGNET SCRIPTS

Copy-paste outreach, DMs, and prompts to win clients for AI services.

This collection is built for one purpose: start real conversations that turn into paid work. Every script below is a template. Replace the words in brackets with your niche and send. Keep it short, specific, and about the buyer, not about you.

The three rules of winning outreach:

1. Name the recipient's world. Show you understand their business.
2. Point at one costly problem you can fix.
3. Ask for a tiny next step, not a sale.

Cold DM to a business owner:

Hi [Name], I help [type of business] get [specific result] without adding to your to-do list. I noticed your [page / posts / listings] and had one quick idea that could lift [metric]. Worth a 10-minute look? No pitch, just the idea.

Follow-up after no reply:

Following up once in case this slipped by. Even a quick yes or no helps me. If now is bad timing, tell me and I will check back next quarter.

Warm intro request:

Do you know any [business type] owners who complain about [problem]? I package that fix as a done-for-you service and would love an intro. Happy to return the favor.

Discovery question set:

- What is the number one task you wish you could remove from your week?
- What have you already tried, and what broke?
- If this were solved, what would that be worth per month?

Use these on a call to shape the offer live.

OUTREACH SCRIPTS THAT ACTUALLY GET REPLIES

Most outreach fails because it sounds like a mass blast. The fix is relevance. Spend two minutes learning one real detail about the prospect, then reference it. That single habit beats a thousand generic messages.

LinkedIn connection note:

Hi [Name], your recent post on [topic] resonated, especially the part about [detail]. I work with [niche] on exactly that. Would love to connect.

Comment-to-DM bridge:

After commenting helpfully on their post: Thanks for posting this. I put together a short note on how [niche] usually fix this in a week. Want me to send it?

Cold email (plain text, no images):

Subject: quick idea for [business]

Hi [Name], I keep seeing [business type] struggle with [problem]. I package the fix as a [deliverable] in [timeframe]. I put together a 3-line version of what I would do for you. Open to it?

Re-engagement to a past lead:

It has been a bit. I now offer [new tier] that solves the exact thing you mentioned. If that is still on your list, I have one slot this month.

Objection handler: Sounds expensive.

I get that. Most clients feel the same until they price the cost of NOT fixing it. Want me to show the math on your numbers?

Objection handler: I need to think.

Makes sense. What would need to be true for this to be an easy yes? I will send that specifically.

Referral ask after delivery:

Glad it worked. If another [business type] owner comes to mind, an intro means a lot. I treat referrals like gold. That is the whole point of doing great work.

SERVICE DELIVERY PROMPTS YOU CAN REUSE

These prompts are the engine behind your delivery. Save each as a template, swap the brackets, and run. They are written to produce usable first drafts, not final copy, so you keep the human quality check.

Prompt - content batch:

You are a senior [role] for a [niche] business. Write 10 [asset type] about [topic]. Each must be [tone], under [length] words, and end with [cta]. Return as a numbered list.

Prompt - offer rewrite:

Rewrite this service description for a busy [buyer]. Keep it under 120 words. Lead with the outcome, then the scope, then proof. Remove jargon. Draft: [paste].

Prompt - onboarding email series:

Write a 3-email onboarding sequence for a new client of a [service]. Email 1 welcomes and sets expectations. Email 2 asks one smart question. Email 3 confirms the plan. Friendly, short, plain language.

Prompt - competitor teardown:

Given this competitor page: [paste], list 5 gaps a [niche] business could exploit, with a one-line fix for each.

Prompt - revision helper:

Here is client feedback: [paste]. Apply it to this draft: [paste]. Keep the voice consistent. Show only the changed sections.

Prompt - case study:

Turn these results into a 150-word client story: [results]. Structure: problem, action, outcome, quote placeholder.

Prompt - pricing page:

Draft a 3-tier pricing table for [service]. Tiers: starter, standard, premium. For each: name, what is included, and who it is for. No made-up numbers.

PROPOSAL AND CLOSE SCRIPTS

A proposal is not a document, it is a decision. Make saying yes the easy path. Send the proposal while enthusiasm is high, within 24 hours of the discovery call.

Proposal message:

Thanks for the call, [Name]. Based on what you said, here is what I would do: [outcome] in [timeframe] for [price]. Scope: [bullets]. Next step is a 50% deposit and we start [date]. Sound good?

Scope confirmation:

To avoid surprises, this engagement includes [list] and one round of revisions. Anything outside that we quote first. That fair?

Soft close:

If this looks right, just reply go and I will send the invoice and kickoff questions.

Deposit reminder:

To lock your slot, a [percent] deposit gets us started. The balance is due on delivery. Easy link here: [link].

Delivery handoff:

Done. Attached are your [deliverables]. Quick summary of what changed and why. If anything needs a tweak, tell me by [date] and it is included.

Upsell after delivery:

You now have [result]. The next lever is usually [next service]. I can run that as a monthly retainer so it stays done. Want the outline?

Testimonial request:

Mind if I quote you on this? A sentence on the result and what working together was like is perfect. I will send a draft for approval.

Renewal nudge:

Your [service] wraps in [time]. I can keep the momentum with another [cycle]. Same scope, priority slot held if you say yes this week.

RETAINER AND REFERRAL SYSTEM SCRIPTS

Recurring revenue is what turns a side hustle into freedom. A retainer is a standing agreement to do a fixed amount of work each month. It removes the weekly panic of finding the next client.

Retainer pitch:

Instead of one-off projects, I can keep [result] handled every month for [price]. That covers [scope]. You stop thinking about it; I keep it running. One monthly invoice, cancel anytime with 30 days notice.

Quarterly check-in:

Quick review of last 90 days: [wins]. For next quarter I suggest [tweak]. Want me to fold that in, or keep steady?

Referral intro script:

Hi [Name], [mutual] suggested you might want help with [problem]. I do this for [niche] as a done-for-you service. Open to a 10-minute chat?

Community value post:

Most [business type] lose [metric] to [problem]. Quick fix that takes an afternoon: [tip]. If you want it done for you, that is my thing.

Win-back script:

It has been a while since we worked on [project]. I have new [capability] that would have helped then. Want a fresh look at the same goal?

Thank-you note:

Really enjoyed shipping [result] with you. Referrals are the best compliment, so if someone fits, send them my way. I will take great care of them.

Closing mindset:

Consistency beats cleverness. Send a few real messages every day, deliver like a pro, and ask happy clients for intros. The magnet is not one perfect script. It is the habit of showing up where buyers already are, with help they can feel.
